PROTECTING, ENFORCING, & ADVANCING VICTIMS' RIGHTS

2013-2014 Annual Report
The Justice Equation

MESSAGE FROM LEADERSHIP

We fight every day for justice. But what does it take to achieve justice? A critical piece is ensuring that victims have meaningful rights to privacy, protection, full restitution, and participation. Only with these rights can victims become survivors. During 2013-2014 we asked that the community join us in this fight so that together we could become “a million rising for victims’ rights.” Wonderfully, individuals and organizations from across the country and around the globe heeded the call. Together we are creating change. Join us as we reflect on the successes of the year and plan for the future: a future in which we will solve the justice equation.

TRAIN & PUBLISH)

"The presentation gave me a different perspective of what victims may be thinking, and what I can change in my every day job."
Police Officer

"The training was great to get folks in the legal field more involved in this growing area of the law."
Attorney

"Even though I do this work regularly, there is always something I learn from NCVLI's presentations. All have been clear, concise, organized and knowledgeable."
Attorney

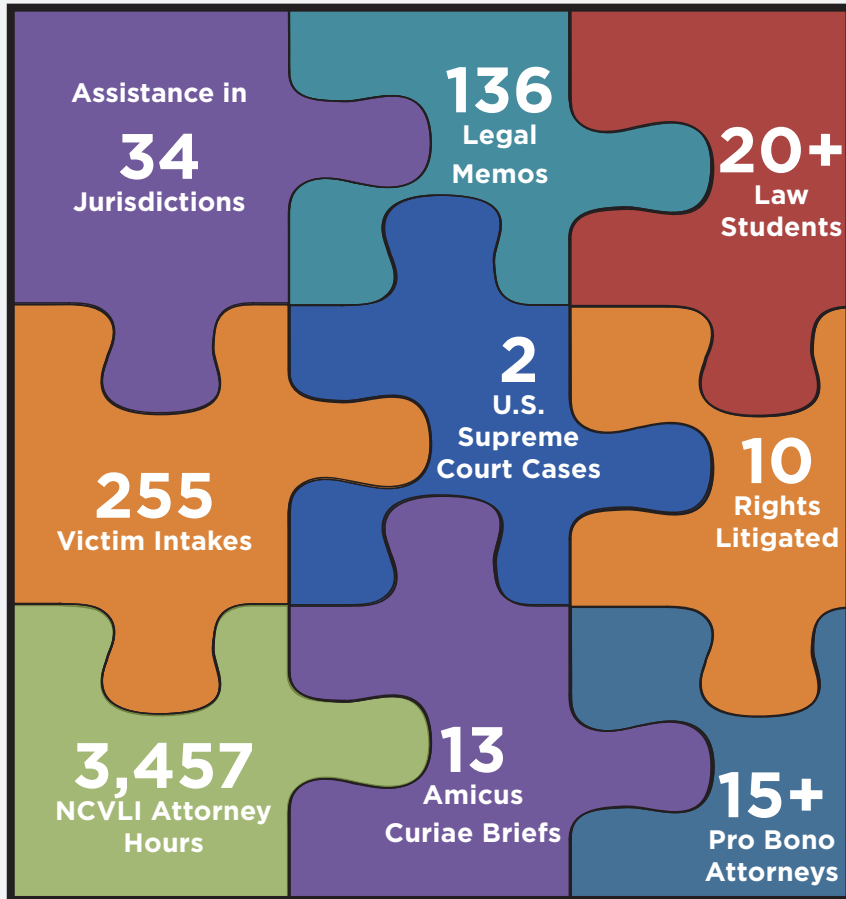

"It was a fantastic experience. It was one of the best trainings I've ever attended. I learned so much that I can take into court with me as an advocate."
